Title of Thesis:- Comparative Phytochemical Characterisation and Bioactivities Evaluation of the Two Species of Genus Boerhaavia L. from Himachal Pradesh.

Research Work carried out in the present Semester

- Completed all the phytochemical analysis.
- Completed all the bioactivities analysis and also revisited all the activities.
- GTO and morphological comparison also done on both the species of Boerhaavia.
- Research papers also submitted in the different journals of UGC Care.
- Research work to be carried out in the next Semester.
- Submission of the Thesis.
- Compilation of the thesis.
- Synopsis also submitted at the Dean PGIS office.
- Synopsis presentation also be done at the departmental and as well as University level.

Problems of Students and Solutions

Generally the students are weak in almost all the aspects of English language i.e. Reading Skills, Speaking and Writing Skills and Comprehension.

Steps are being taken to improve the English language skills, e.g., they are being made to read their text as well as general articles in the class to correct their pronunciation, punctuation, proper word stress, intonation and fluency in speaking English.

One day in a week is devoted to writing and presenting a paper in front of the audience.

There has been noticeable improvement in all aspects of English language.

Problems of Students and Solutions (Kuldeep)

(50)

1. Writing skills play an important role in shaping career. Today we are living in a globalized world where many job opportunities in government or private sector need effective writing skills. Our students among most of them belong to weaker section of society are not efficient to write sentences and paragraph properly.

Solution: So I have started teaching them to write small sentences as per their level. Their daily activities are brought into discussion and they are gradually learning from the examples from their daily life. They are said to write small sentences and paragraphs so that a writing habit could be developed among them. A consistent improvement has been noted in their level of writing sentences and framing small paragraphs.

2. To create habit of reading newspapers and magazines and issues which are not the part of their syllabus. Such studies not only make them aware about career and other developments but also create spirit of completion among the students.

Solution: Most of the students do not have habit of reading newspapers, magazine and extra books which are not the part of their syllabus. I always encourage them to read English newspapers, short stories and magazines. A diary for recording the vocabulary, important dialogues and the question of general knowledge have been made compulsory for each student.

3. Today students are supposed to be confident in each walk of life so that they can firmly put their point of view before the people. Many a times rural students lag behind due to their hesitation and shy nature.

Solution: Since we have students from rural background they usually hesitate to communicate with teachers and class mates. So I have started debates and discussions on the issues pertaining to their syllabus and what they have read in newspapers, magazines and story books. These discussions have been proved effective in taking them out from their hesitation and shy nature. Now they are improving and getting courage to put their point of view before the teacher and students.

4. Grammar is the most essential part of learning any language which makes the students strong and confident in representing themselves in any kind of completion. So extra classes on basic grammar is the need of our curriculum.

Solution: The students are very weak in the basic grammar. So I am teaching them how to recognize, understand and use nouns, verbs, adjectives and tenses etc. More stress is given on grammatical section in the class.

5. The augmentation in comprehension level of the students is as also equally important. Only proper understanding of texts, newspapers or any piece of writing can make them confident and competitive.

Solution: The students are very weak in comprehension. They cannot comprehend small paragraphs or any kind of piece of writing. So I have given them small and simple paragraphs to develop an understanding on any kind of written paragraphs. They are helped to make sense of a written paragraph.

Problems of Students and Solutions

(S²)

Main problem I face while teaching the class is wrong or less oral and written communication response from the student's side. Though some of them are from English medium schools, but majority of the students have completed their studies through Punjabi medium schools and thus are bit weak in English.

For Written Communication, I regularly give them composition assignments in form of answering some questions from the text. I make sure I check the answers personally after a group assignment of checking each other's questions. I correct the mistake and make them to rewrite that.

For Oral Communication I keep asking questions from the text while teaching the chapters and question answers. I often take presentation on certain topics from the syllabus.

Some of the problems faced by the students are:

(74)

1. The lessons they have in the classes are not enough to help them speak English effectively. Although English is a compulsory, subject from primary to the highest level of education, students are not sufficiently exposed to opportunities for speaking English. In the current competitive job market, communication skill is an imperative for any good career both in national and international settings.
Solution: Students are given extra English language coaching away from their class room schedules in the University's Language Lab.

2. Sometimes classroom communication also suffers when students are bored or unenthusiastic about their classwork because of their hectic busy schedules.

Solution: They are given thought-provoking assignments, technology-enhanced lectures and creative projects as this spurs classroom communication and interaction.

3. Often, some of these students suffer from unaddressed learning or speech difficulties as they struggle to communicate in classroom settings because of their extreme rural background. Sometimes, they have trouble comprehending lessons and organizing their thoughts. Because of hesitation, students often shut down, isolating themselves out of fear or embarrassment.

Solution: We as counsellors encourage such students to talk about their work; that talk is usually about problematic aspects of work. Also, some of the efforts made by such students' to ask for help results in negative labels. Therefore special care is been taken for such students.

4. Sometimes, Communication between two students is also being hampered on account of personality or family background. For example, many students feel uncomfortable connecting on a personal level with their teachers and avoid communicating with them. This personality dynamic is mostly frustrating for teachers who attempt to bond with each student, only to find their efforts unsuccessful.

Solution: Personality differences lead to frustration, unhappiness and a lack of communication between students and teachers. So, much care is being taken of such sensitive students. Even as and when required they are provided psychotherapy also.

5. Many a times, lack of communication skills, put some of the students under lot of stress on these undergraduate students.
